A Blackton Production The House of the Tolling Bell

"The House of the Tolling Bell" is the title of the photoplay which features the premiere of the Onyx Theatre, Oct. 24, May Hooper, the guide and charming star of "The House of the Tolling Bell," is the star of this new production. The theme of "The House of the Tolling Bell" deals with the rivalry and the passion and the superstition of the South.

The plot hinges upon the division of an extensive estate among the heirs. One stipulation of the will demands that the heir who enters the master house must live in it for one year. To the natives of the community this house, known as the "House of the Tolling Bell," bears an evil reputation. Was in the strange, white, subject himself to the "bad luck" which seems to every one who lives in this House of the Tolling Bell.

A niece of the old master and the son of his deceased daughter, unknown to each other, take up residence there. After thrilling experiences, not altogether due to evil spirits but wicked men as well, they discover each other's presence. Young, unmarried and honorable they should not be living alone in the unpopulated house. But each one wants the estate and something must be done. The solution is such an amazing climax to an thrilling story that to tell it would spoil the enjoyment. See it at the Onyx on Sunday.

VIOLA DANA SURPRISES HER AUDIENCE IN NEW ROLE

"Some Bride" is a brilliant picture which will be seen at the Onyx Theatre, Monday, October 23. In it Viola Dana is seen at her best. The play shows that although a young bride with "can't behave" eyes may like to flirt she is staggered on the thin edge of her husband's affections if she persists in this dangerous fascinating occupation.

This is the trouble between the Martins. Patricia likes the admiration of other men and Henry is a society jealous. They both play a game of cross-purposes which almost ends in matrimonial disaster. However, Patricia is lucky enough to have a girl friend who is full of women's wisdom. Together they plan to give Henry a lesson to cure him of his needless jealousy and at the same time to show the barnstormers at Patricia's expense.

How they wanted to cleverly shown in the play which is filled with brilliant and amusing situations. The ending is a happy one and the young husband admits to his own folly.

WILLIAM FARNUM AT ONYX THEATRE WEDNESDAY, OCT. 27

An old Columbus favorite, William Farnum, will appear on the screen at the Onyx Wednesday evening, October 27, in the "Wings of the Morning," depicting the supreme test of a real man.

Public School Review

Columbus Public Schools
Vol. 2, No. 4
Published Friday

Fair week was welcomed by all the pupils. We think Col. French was just grand to have three big army trucks pick us up and take us to the fair at Deming and then bring us back. The ride was just fine, but, like every girl's hair was a fright when we got there.

The exhibit of the Columbus schools at the fair was the best ever. Everybody said so. Arrangement of the exhibit was splendid, the school work being tacked on huge boards artistically decorated. Miss Rebekah Coffin and her corps of teachers are certainly deserving of much praise for the creditable showing.

Pupils of the schools here won SEVEN prizes at the Deming fair.

Miss Lovett's exhibit of type-writing won.

Barbara Carter's "A personal Experience," a composition, won a prize.

"Buster" Johnson won a blue ribbon.

The superintendent, Miss Coffin, visited friends at Montale last Saturday.

Pupils of the higher grades are getting out a school annual. It is going to be a dandy. If not too expensive there will be photos of the teachers and pupils. Expenses will be met by advertising.

Our new teachers are just lovely and the more we see of them the better we like them. They are all good looking, too, especially one.

Athletics in the school are a bit slow, but it is said there will be more doing in the future. Let's hope.

Della Johnson says there WILL be a school annual, she knows.

Helen Holloway sprained muscles in her right hand last week.

Lalla Hooker Kelly and Zelma were prize winners at the fair. You just can't keep these two girls down. When anything is to be won they always get it.

GIRL AND FRIENDS ARRESTED FOR FAKE MAGAZINE SCHEME

Albuquerque, Oct. 20.—Miss Elmore Kaskin, a pretty girl of 21 years, and W. F. Bennington, were arrested here charged with working a fake magazine scheme. It is alleged that the two have been taking subscriptions for a magazine and after getting the money, were sending the magazine. After spending the night in the city jail Miss Kaskin told Judge McClellan how they had swindled the people out of their money in this way all the way from Chicago to New Mexico, and that during this time she and Bennington had passed as Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thomas. After learning the story Miss Kaskin was sent to jail for 90 days and Bennington for 60 days. In the meantime the department of police officers will investigate.

On Nov. 15, 16, 17 and 18 you will find many things that will interest you at the Hippodrome. Reasonable goods will be on sale at half the usual price. Columbus Drug Co.
